

Sleepy John Estes - In Europe (1966)

Written by bluesever

Sunday, 26 January 2014 17:08 -

Sleepy John Estes - In Europe (1966)

01 - Needmore Blues 02 - Who's Been Tellin' You 03 - Airplane Blues 04 - Vernita 05 - Denmark Blues 06 - I'm A Tearing Little Daddy 07 - I Stayed Away Too Long 08 - Drop Down Mama 09 - The Woman I Love 10 - You Oughtn't Do That 11 - Easin' Back To Tennessee 12 - I'm A Tearing Little Daddy (Alternate) 13 - Blues For J. F. K. Sleepy John Estes – guitar, vocals Hammie Nixon – harmonica, jug

Having only sporadically left his rural hamlet of Brownsville, TN, for recording trips in Chicago and Memphis, blues guitarist and singer Sleepy John Estes must have found it a bit of a shock to make the 1964 American Folk-Blues Festival tour of Europe. Like most contemporary country-blues musicians from the South, Estes did ramble, playing country suppers and plantation parties as a solo act or with a minstrel show, but his exposure to the urban and transatlantic world was still minimal to nonexistent. As evidenced by both reportage and this document of his 1964 trip to Denmark, France, Sweden, Germany, and England, though, Estes mostly enjoyed his first trip abroad, having fun with his international hosts while still living up to his nickname by mysteriously nodding off on several occasions. Traveling with other blues luminaries such as Howlin' Wolf and Sonny Boy Williamson, Estes teamed up with longtime harmonica partner Hammie Nixon (who also plays the jug on a few tunes here) to cut a batch of numbers at studios in Copenhagen and London. The two cover classic Estes material like "Needmore Blues" and "Drop Down Mama" (most of the material here was originally recorded for Decca during the '30s), as well as newer cuts like "Denmark Blues." In fact, throughout the album, Estes updates many of the old songs with references to cities visited and friends made along the tour route. And while Estes' sinuously grainy voice and furtive guitar strumming perfectly reflect the kaleidoscopic nature of the trip, Hammie Nixon's high-lonesome harmonica makes light of the homesickness the two musicians reportedly felt. A great disc that's best heard after first checking out Estes' classic Decca sides. ---Stephen Cook, Rovi download: uploaded filecloudio anonfiles yandex 4shared solidfiles mediafire mega nornar

Sleepy John Estes - In Europe (1966)

Written by bluesever

Sunday, 26 January 2014 17:08 -

back