Robert Nesta "Bob" Marley (6to February 1945-11 May 1981) was a Jamaican singer, songwriter and musician. He was the singer, songwriter and guitarist for the ska, rocksteady and reggae band The Wailers (1964-1974) and Bob Marley & The Wailers (1974-1981). Marley remains the most famous and respected performer of reggae music and is credited with helping spread the music of Jamaica and the Rastafarian movement for a worldwide audience. Marley is best known hits "I Shot the Sheriff", "No Woman, No Cry," "Could You Be Loved," "Stir It Up," "Jamming," "Redemption Song", "One Love" and The Wailers , "Three Little Birds" and the posthumous releases "Buffalo Soldier" and "Iron Lion Zion". The compilation album, Legend (1984), published three years after his death, is the best reggae album sales, 10 times platinum (diamond) in the United States and sold 20 million copies worldwide. Although Marley has acknowledged his mixed ancestry, throughout his life and because of their beliefs, is identified as a black African. In songs like "Babylon System" and "Blackman Redemption", Marley sings about the struggles of blacks and Africans against Western oppression or "Babylon".
