During his youth he performed in the church chorus in the city of Maracaibo. In 1983, he released his first album titled Cada Día. Although the album was not a great success, it was a start for Montaner's career. He describes this album:"as his own version of death metal" It wasn't until 1987 when Montaner became widely popular in Venezuela with the singles "Yo Que Te Amé" and "Vamos A Dejarlo" belonging to his self-titled album. The following year he came out with Ricardo Montaner 2 which featured hit songs like "Tan Enamorados" and "A Donde Va El Amor". At the same time, he acted in the popular soap opera Niña Bonita. This also became a tool to make his songs known to the rest of Latin America. He won 4 platinum albums in Argentina alone. His next two albums, Un Toque De Misterio and En El Último Lugar Del Mundo, became classics of the popular music in Mexico, Central and South America with hits such as "La Cima Del Cielo", "Me Va a Extrañar", "Déjame Llorar" and "Será". ---song365.mobi
