

Ana Popovic - Can You Stand The Heat (2013)

Written by bluesever

Friday, 21 February 2014 16:57 -

Ana Popovic - Can You Stand The Heat (2013)

01 – Can You Stand The Heat 02 – Can't You See What You're Doing To Me 03 – Mo' Better Love 04 – Object Of Obsession 05 – Boys' Night Out 06 – Hot Southern Night feat. Lucky Peterson 07 – Every Kind Of People 08 – Ana's Shuffle 09 – Blues For Mrs. Pauline 10 – Leave Well Enough Alone AKA High Maintenance You 11 – Tribe 12 – Rain Fall Down 13 – Growing Up Too Soon (Bonus Track) 14 – Mo' Better Love feat. Tommy Sims (Bonus Track) Ana Popovic – guitar, vocals John Williams – bass Harold Smith – guitar Tony Coleman – drums The Bo-Keys - horns

Blues, powerful vocals, and a hint of jazz: Ana Popovic must be back. The three-time 2012 Blues Music Awards nominee returns this spring with Can You Stand the Heat, a project that signals Popovic's search for an edgier sound with an instrumental range that went largely unexplored on previous records. Originally from Belgrade, Serbia, Popovic first dove into music with the band Hush in the 1990s before electing to work as a solo artist in 1999. In support of her latest release with ArtisteXclusive Records, Popovic is touring as Ana Popovic & Mo' Better Love, a new collaboration that emanates the full sound achieved on the album.

Can You Stand the Heat kicks off with its title track, a five minute-long jazzy jaunt that taps into gospel-styled background vocals and scaling keys. On "Hot Southern Night" and the fast-paced "Boys Night Out," Popovic shares the influence of her current Memphis base with American blues-styled licks and vibes. Popovic turns it up one notch further on "Hot Southern Night" as Grammy Awards nominee Lucky Peterson steps in to trade vocals with Popovic and lend his own six-string and organ-playing skills. Grammy winner Tommy Sims also makes a guest appearance to close the album with a remixed version of "Mo' Better Love," the original of which is included on the album as well.

For hardcore blues fans, the album's reigning tracks will likely be "Tribe," "Ana's Shuffle" and

Ana Popovic - Can You Stand The Heat (2013)

Written by bluesever

Friday, 21 February 2014 16:57 -

“Blues for Mrs. Pauline.” The short guitar-lovers-only intro to “Tribe” recalls the mood felt on classic lead-ins like in Led Zeppelin’s “Nobody’s Fault But Mine,” while “Ana’s Shuffle” cuts vocals out of the equation entirely to focus on enthusiastic soloing and technical tenacity. “Blues for Mrs. Pauline” offers a nice contrast to the shuffle as it weaves a warning against cheating in relationships through the lyrics and around a supporting cast of rhythms and harmonies. Popovic’s voice, clear and forceful, gives the lyrics a charge that makes each story shared and each sentiment expressed feel honest and heartfelt.

Though Popovic’s take on the blues sounds similar to much of the jazz-influenced blues music of today and of decades past, it is Popovic’s voice that gives her work its strength. The new musical elements explored in Can You Stand the Heat (including the background singers and keyboard work, as well as the rhythm guitar and horn sections) give Popovic’s latest release a wider range of sounds to choose from. While Popovic’s sampling comes across well on the record, the live feel she strives for has a fair chance of sounding even better live. With her new project Ana Popovic & Mo’ Better Love already on the road, concert and festival attendees are likely discovering that Popovic’s songs reach new levels when performed onstage. --- bluesrockreview.com

download: uploaded yandex 4shared mediafire solidfiles mega filecloudio nornar

back