

John Oates Band - The Bluesville Session (2012)

Written by bluesever

Thursday, 05 July 2012 19:14 - Last Updated Saturday, 13 March 2021 21:23

---

John Oates Band - The Bluesville Session (2012)

01. Mississippi Mile 02. Searchin' 03. Come Back Baby 04. It's Alright 05. All Shook Up
06. Send Me Someone To Love 07. Something You Got 08. Deep River 09. Sittin' On Top Of
The World 10. He Was A Friend of Mine 11. Dance Hall Girls 12. Maneater John Oates
(guitar, vocals), Mark Newman (guitar, slide guitar, vocals), Kevin McKendree (piano, organ),
Michael Jude (bass, vocals), John Michel (drums, vocals).

As part of the promotion for his 2011 blues album Mississippi Mile, John Oates dropped by Sirius XM studios to perform live on their Bluesville station. This 2012 set, appropriately titled The Bluesville Sessions, captures that concert and, like the album it's promoting, it's a surprisingly convincing and thoroughly entertaining blend of classic soul, folk, rock & roll, and, of course, blues. Due to the vagaries of age, Oates now has a considerable amount of grit in his voice, something that suits these songs well, whether they're originals or covers of Curtis Mayfield's "It's Alright," Percy Mayfield's "Please Send Me Someone to Love," the Coasters' "Searchin'," or "Sittin' on Top of the World." Oates throws out a tip of a hat to his pop past by concluding his set with "Maneater," but that too has been given a cheerfully bouncy, rootsy makeover. There isn't much dark mining of the soul on The Bluesville Sessions, but that's the appeal of the set: it's relaxed and friendly and Oates' pleasure in playing these tunes is palpable. --- Stephen Thomas Erlewine, allmusic.com download (mp3 @320 kbs):

yandex mediafire ulozto global-files

John Oates Band - The Bluesville Session (2012)

Written by bluesever

Thursday, 05 July 2012 19:14 - Last Updated Saturday, 13 March 2021 21:23

---

back