

Pillac - Nervous Breakdown (2013)

Written by bluesever

Thursday, 11 September 2014 19:46 -

Pillac - Nervous Breakdown (2013)

1. Never Make Your Move Too Soon 2. Nervous Breakdown 3. I've Been Down 4. Skipping Like A Stone 5. Life Is Hard 6. I've Had Enough 7. Givin' It Up For Your Love 8. You Can Stay But The Noise Must Go 9. Housekeepin' Blues 10. Fonk You Xavier Pillac – guitar, vocals Cedric Le Goff – Hammond B3 organ, vocals Antoine Escalier – bass, vocals Alain Baudry – drums, vocals Frank Bougier – trumpet Vincent Aubert – trombone Guillaume Sené – tenor saxophone Yann Cuyeu – rhythm guitar

Pillac is one of those select few French artists capable of breathing new life into the blues heritage. The outstanding quality of his work is the result of ten years of ardent labor, the fruit of Xavier Pillac's total commitment to an art form the Blues Muse lay at his feet at an early age. Pillac mixes blues, funk and soul (in full horn regalia) with astonishing savvy in this self-titled opus. An essential album for all blues aficionados. --- bluesweb.com

An established French guitarist Xavier Pillac, has released three albums of his own and has had a distinctive career so far. Amongst others he has shared the same stage as Lucky Peterson and Ana Popovic. On this release he has formed a new band named Pillac. An interesting blend of blues funk and soul makes for very pleasant listening. A lot of influences on show with a rare cover of Johnny Guitar Watson's You Can Stay But The Noise Must Go, showcases a band of quality musicians. This was co-produced in Xavier Pillac's studio with Xavier and Albert Milauchian, a sound engineer who has worked with such bands as Malted Milk. Xavier Pillac and his bassist Antoine Escalier have worked together for thirteen years and wanted to experiment with the addition of a horn section, this noted in such tracks as the opener Never Make Your Move Too Soon, which blends in with a wonderful organ arrangement played by Cedric Le Goff and the funky undertones of bassist. For me one of the most outstanding tracks

Pillac - Nervous Breakdown (2013)

Written by bluesever

Thursday, 11 September 2014 19:46 -

is the title track Nervous Breakdown, very laid back tone to this but the band really gelling together with harmonious effect. Xavier Pillac's vocal range and tone add a different level on the gentle lyrics and arrangement on, I've Been Down. Also his effortless slide guitar playing just resonates through the whole release a superb sound a band worthy of more exposure. ---Colin Campbell, bluesmatters.com download (mp3 @320 kbs):

uploaded yandex 4shared mediafire mega solidfiles zalivalka cloudmailru filecloud
io anon
files
oboom

back