

Freddie King - My Feeling for Blues (1969)

Written by bluesever

Wednesday, 28 October 2009 11:35 - Last Updated Tuesday, 26 January 2021 20:28

Freddie King - My Feeling for Blues (1970)

1. Yonder Wall
2. Stumble
3. I Wonder Why
4. Stormy Monday
5. I Don't Know
6. What'd I Say
7. Ain't Nobody's Business what We Do
8. You Don't Have To Go
9. Woke Up This Morning
10. The things I Used To Do
11. My Feeling For The Blues

Freddie King (vocals, guitar); Cornell Dupree (guitar); Hugh McCracken (harmonica, tenor saxophone); Willie Bridges, Trevor Lawrence (saxophone, tenor saxophone, baritone saxophone); Frank Wess, George Coleman (saxophone, tenor saxophone); King Curtis (tenor saxophone); Ernie Royal, Martin Banks (trumpet); George Stubbs (piano); Jerry Jemmott (bass guitar); Kenneth Rich, Kenneth "Spider Webb" Rice (drums).

Blues guitar giant Freddie King became a star in the early 1960s with tunes like "Hideaway" on the King label (no relation), but this 1969 album marks his move to Atlantic, where he updated his sound just a little. The King Curtis-produced set employs heavyweight NYC session cats and adds a very slight tinge of contemporary rock tonality (the occasional wah-wah guitar and electric piano) and funk rhythm to King's classic blues sound, lending a fresh feeling to the likes of Willie Dixon's "I Don't Know" and Ray Charles's "What'd I Say." ---Editorial Review download (mp3 @320 kbs):

Freddie King - My Feeling for Blues (1969)

Written by bluesever

Wednesday, 28 October 2009 11:35 - Last Updated Tuesday, 26 January 2021 20:28

yandex mediafire ulozto gett solidfiles bayfiles

back