Bartłomiej "Bartek" Nizioł, born on the 1st of February 1974 in Szczecin (Poland), is a Polish violinist playing in a bel canto style.

Nizioł started to learn to play the violin at the age of five. His first teachers were Stanisław Ślusarek and Stanisław Hajzer. In 1986 Nizioł entered at the conservatory for gifted children in Poznań to learn in the class of Jadwiga Kaliszewska. In 1993 he graduated with honour from the Academy of Music in Poznań to continue his study in Lausanne under Pierre Amoyal. Besides his regular studies, he took part in several master classes working with such musicians as Zakhar Bron, Mauricio Fuchs, Ruggiero Ricci and Michael Frischenschlager.

Bartłomiej Nizioł won top prizes at many violin competitions. From 1997 to 2003 Nizioł was concertmaster of Tonhalle Orchester Zurich. Since 2003 Nizioł has been concertmaster of the Zurich Opera. Nizioł is the founder of the Nizioł Quartet (2000) and the Valentin Berlinsky Quartet (2009) the name of which is a tribute to Valentin Berlinsky (the Borodin Quartet's cellist who died in 2008). From 2007 to 2010 Nizioł also performed with the Stradivari Quartet.

Since autumn 2008 Nizioł has been named the professor in Hochschule der Künste Bern (the University of the Arts Berne) in Switzerland.
