Esbjörn Svensson Trio - Seven Days of Falling (2003)

01 - Ballad for the Unborn 02 - Seven Days of Falling 03 - Mingle in the Mincing Machine
04 - Evening in the Atlantis 05 - Did They Ever Tell Cousteau 06 - Believe Beleft Below 07 -
Elevation of Love 08 - In My Garage 09 - Why She Couldn't Come 10 - O.D.R.I.P Daniel
Berglund – double bass Magnus Öström – drums Esbjörn Svensson – piano

Available for quite some time as an import before the tiny Philadelphia-based indie 215 Records finally released it stateside, complete with a bonus live DVD, 2003's Seven Days of Falling is every bit the equal of E.S.T.'s earlier records. Misguided American media comparisons to the highly overrated the Bad Plus have done pianist Esbjörn Svensson, bassist Dan Berglund, and drummer Magnus Öström a grave disservice, as their music is far more wide-ranging and much less gimmicky. Despite occasional forays into rock influences like "O.D.R.I.P." and a few brief passages that skirt the edges of outside free improv, there's an elegance and shapeliness to the trio's work that has more in common with the cerebral cool of Bill Evans (particularly on the quietly gorgeous opener "Ballad for the Unborn") or the effortless melodic grace of the Vince Guaraldi Trio ("Evening in Atlantis," "Believe, Beleft, Below"). Seven Days of Falling is a ravishingly beautiful, musically captivating album. Bonus track alert: hidden after the nervy "O.D.R.I.P." is the Sinatra-like ballad "Love Is Real," featuring guest vocals from Josh Haden, son of Charlie and brother of Petra. --Stewart Mason, Rovi
