Michel Teló (Paraná, Brazil January 21, 1981) is a Brazilian singer and composer. Before his solo act, he was a vocalist in various bands, most notably Grupo Tradição. His biggest national and international hit is "Ai se eu te pego!", a number 1 in most European countries.

In 1997, Teló was just 16 when he was invited to join the band "Grupo Tradição", making part of the band for eleven years as lead vocal, until 2008. His career as a singer took off as he sang the band's biggest hits, such as "Barquinho", "O Caldeirão", "Pra Sempre Minha Vida", "A Brasileira" and "Eu Quero Você". During such period of time, he was the band's front figure, conducting most of the interviews and promotions. According to Teló's former producer Wagner, he left without creating any enmity or hard feelings, as Teló made clear that he wanted to pursue a solo career. He was replaced by Guilherme Bertoldo, but the band had lost most of its appeal due to his departure and soon members began to quit the band, not having enough trust in the viability of the band without Michel.

The album Balada Sertaneja was released in 2009 by Brazilian record label Som Livre. It was produced by Ivan Myazato and resulted in two singles: "Ei, psiu! Beijo me liga", a great commercial success, and "Amanhã sei lá". The release of the live album Michel Teló - Ao Vivo was an even bigger success and awarded Teló a gold disc. This culminated in a huge concert on September 16th 2011 attended by reportedly 50 thousand people in a double ticket, which included Teló and João Bosco & Vinícius at Terraço Daslu. Throughout 2011 Michel Teló made over 240 shows. According to Forbes magazine,[3] Teló's "Fugidinha Tour" was attended by more than 17 million people and Teló has reportedly made $18 million dollars in 2011. Teló has also released two DVDs, one containing songs from the 1980s and 1990s, in collaboration with Milionário & José Rico, Bruno e Marrone and João Bosco & Vinícius, and the other, entitled Michel na Balada, including new songs.
