Here it is finally, one of the most anticipated albums this year completely produced by Pharrell, is out for everyone on Gloria Estefan's youtube site for a preview. Gloria Estefan is about to release her first English-language album in eight years. Little Miss Havana will hit stores on Sept. 27. But the only stores it will hit are Targets. The popular chain has an exclusive deal with the Cuban-born singer to sell the release. The album, produced by Pharrell Williams and co-produced by Estefan, marks a return to the singer's dance roots. The release also coincides with the 25th anniversary of Estefan's first major hit song, Conga, which brought her and the Miami Sound Machine international fame. Those who purchase the album can download an anniversary remix of the catchy track. Estefan, for years under contract to Sony, is among a handful of high-profile Latin acts to deviate from a traditional major-label release.

Naturally a deluxe version will be available which will have four bonus songs and access to more content. The album represents the artist's return to dance music. Known as the "Queen Of Latin Pop," Estefan's release celebrates her musical roots and embraces a new pop sound that translates into music full of life, love and energy. The Target deluxe album bonus songs, produced by Emilio Estefan, include: "On," "Medicine," Estefan's version of "Let's Get Loud," and "WEPA" a DJ R3hab Remix featuring Pitbull. On the Target album, guests also have

"I am so excited to partner with Target on the release of my new CD 'Miss Little Havana,' an album that was so much fun to make and is a return to where it all started for me ... on the dance floor," ... "There are a few extra surprises on the Target exclusive deluxe CD that I'm sure my fans will love. Working with Pharrell and Emilio on this project just felt right. My fans have been asking for a new dance record, and I hope they will enjoy the music as much as I enjoyed writing and recording it." ---Gloria Estefan
