The CWB are three musicians, and three musicians you will hear. No overdubs, no special effects. The listener will be 'in the room with the band', as if attending a live show. What you hear is what you get! All songs are originals, the album contains no covers.

Where 'Broken Glass' was a master piece of Coen Wolters as a guitar virtuoso and a statement/manifesto confirming his solid presence in the blues/rock world, 'As the crow flies' is more of a song based record, where groove and feel are the main purpose. There is still room for some wizardry, but the listener is treated with songs that can take them far away in their thoughts and mood. ---Album Notes, cdbaby.com
