

Junior Wells - You're Tuff Enough 1968 (1998)

Wpisany przez bluesever

Czwartek, 18 Maj 2017 15:54 - Zmieniony Piątek, 19 Marzec 2021 15:18

Junior Wells - You're Tuff Enough 1968 (1998)

01. You're Tuff Enough (2:23) 02. It's All Soul (2:29) 03. Gonna Cramp Your Style (2:10)
04. Where Did I Go Wrong (3:09) 05. That'll Hold Me (2:20) 06. Sweet Darling Think It Over
(2:25) 07. Up In Heah (2:04) 08. You're The One (3:24) 09. You Ought To Quit That (2:11)
10. Messing With The Kid (2:14) 11. The Hippies Are Trying (4:12) 12. Junior's Groove (2:17)
13. Girl You Lit My Fire (2:02) 14. It's A Man Down There (2:11) 15. I'm Your Gravy Train
(2:25) 16. Leave My Woman Alone (2:56) 17. I Can't Stand No Signifying (2:51) 18. I Just
Wanna Groove (2:46) 19. You Better Watch Yourself (2:12) 20. What Is That You Got (2:13)
21. Another Mule Kicking In Your Stall (3:31) 22. Party Power (2:11) Junior Wells -
Harmonica, Vocals, Primary Artist

Another period of the veteran Chicago harpman's career, and one of the most exciting. Wells' late-'60s output for Bright Star and Mercury's Blue Rock subsidiary frequently found him mining funky James Brown grooves (with a bluesy base, of course) to great effect. "Up in Heah" and his national smash "You're Tuff Enough" are marvelous examples of his refusal to bend to purists' wishes (though there's a glorious version of Bobby Bland's blues-soaked "You're the One" that benefits handily from Sammy Lawhorn's delicate guitar work). ---Bill Dahl, AllMusic Review

Were it not for Junior Wells's superlative harmonica playing and expressive voice, You're Tuff Enough might have been a muddle of drums and horns. Wells, however, was a strong enough musician that it's he, not his backing band, that stands out most strongly on this recording. This recording illustrates Wells's prescience in incorporating elements of funk and rock into his music. Check out the James-Brown- inflected "Up in Heah," or the rock-out feel of the title track, which appeared on national R&B charts in 1968. One hears echoes of Brown on "You Ought to

Junior Wells - You're Tuff Enough 1968 (1998)

Wpisany przez bluesever

Czwartek, 18 Maj 2017 15:54 - Zmieniony Piątek, 19 Marzec 2021 15:18

Quit That" as well. But Wells could sing the blues straight up as well, as he shows with a sweet rendition of "You're the One." While not quite the classic that 1965's Hoodoo Man Blues (which featured Buddy Guy on guitar) was, You're Tuff Enough is an excellent collection, one whose reissue on CD is long overdue. --Genevieve Williams, amazon.com download (mp3 @320 kbs):

yandex mediafire uloz.to solidfiles global-files

back