

Pyotr Tchaikovsky - Violin Concerto (Joshua Bell) [2010]

Wpisany przez bluesever

Poniedziałek, 26 Październik 2009 23:18 - Zmieniony Czwartek, 05 Czerwiec 2014 17:27

Pyotr Tchaikovsky - Violin Concerto (Joshua Bell) [2010]

1) Allegro moderato (19:32) 2) Canzonetta. Andante (6:34) 3) Finale. Allegro vivacissimo (10:47) Joshua Bell - violin Royal Stockholm Philharmonic Orchestra Sakari Oramo - conductor The 2010 Nobel Prize Concert

The Royal Stockholm Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of Finnish conductor Sakari Oramo, a conductor with whom I'm not familiar, but I expect to hear more of him.

For many listeners, Joshua Bell is really excellent in a highly romantic reading of the Tchaikovsky concerto. The Royal Stockholm Philharmonic Orchestra — a world-class ensemble — and Sakari Oramo give perfect support to Mr. Bell. The only slightly negative aspect of this DVD is the fact that the viewer has to watch the profuse perspiration of the soloist, because it clearly is an exhausting task to perform this concerto. In the end, however, it is obvious that Bell has complete mastery of this music.

During the interview with Joshua Bell we learn that the Stradivarius violin that Bell plays had belonged to violinist Bronislaw Huberman, one of the major violinists of the early twentieth century. This violin had been stolen from the previous owner, and years later the thief confessed to the act and Mr. Bell was able to purchase the instrument. ---instantencore.com download: uploaded yandex 4shared mediafire solidfiles mega zalivalka filecloudio

anonfiles
oboom

Pyotr Tchaikovsky - Violin Concerto (Joshua Bell) [2010]

Wpisany przez bluesever

Poniedziałek, 26 Październik 2009 23:18 - Zmieniony Czwartek, 05 Czerwiec 2014 17:27

back