

Jackie Gleason - Music, Martinis and Memories (1954)

Wpisany przez bluelover
Wtorek, 10 Lipiec 2012 17:14 -

Jackie Gleason - Music, Martinis and Memories (1954)

*A1 I Got It Bad And That Ain't Good 3:25 A2 My Ideal 2:31 A3 I Remember You 3:12
A4 Shangri-La 3:27 A5 It Could Happen To You 2:50 A6 Somebody Loves Me 2:58 B1
The Song Is Ended 2:21 B2 Once In A While 3:13 B3 I Can't Get Started 3:24 B4
Yesterdays 3:04 B5 I'll Be Seeing You 3:01 B6 Time On My Hands 3:07* Personnel:
Conductor [Orchestra] – Jackie Gleason Presenter – Jackie Gleason Trumpet [Solos] –
Bobby Hackett

The arrangements on Music, Martinis, and Memories are really very simple: massed violins play the melody while Bobby Hackett's trumpet flits around the edges, or sometimes Hackett takes the lead over a bed of swelling strings. The music sets a romantic mood, but compared to the arrangements of Percy Faith or Les Baxter, Gleason is plain vanilla. Many of the orchestral pop leaders made a point of boiling down their music to its essentials without fancy flourishes, and their success proves the mainstream appeal of such an approach. But if you're looking for depth, you won't find much of it here. Music, Martinis, and Memories is fine dinner music, and Hackett's technique is superb, but the album fails to hold the listener's attention when brought to the foreground. --- Greg Adams, Rovi download: yandex ziddu

back