

Wilco – A Ghost Is Born (2004)

Wpisany przez bluesever

Poniedziałek, 12 Październik 2009 22:22 - Zmieniony Czwartek, 04 Kwiecień 2019 19:15

Wilco – A Ghost Is Born (2004)

01 - At Least That's What You Said 02 - Hell Is Chrome 03 - Spiders 04 - Muzzle of Bees 05 - Hummingbird 06 - Handshake Drugs 07 - Wishful Thinking 08 - Company in My Back 09 - I'm a Wheel 10 - Theologians 11 - Less Than You Think 12 - The Late Greats
Acoustic Guitar – Jeff Tweedy, Jim O'Rourke, John Stirratt, Leroy Bach Backing Vocals – John Stirratt Bass – Jim O'Rourke, John Stirratt, Leroy Bach Double Bass – Jeff Tweedy Drums – Glenn Kotche Dulcimer [Hammered] – Glenn Kotche Electric Guitar – Jeff Tweedy, Jim O'Rourke, John Stirratt, Leroy Bach Keyboards [Rock-si-chord] – Mikael Jorgensen Keyboards [Stylophone] – Mikael Jorgensen Loops – Glenn Kotche, Jeff Tweedy, Jim O'Rourke, John Stirratt, Leroy Bach Organ – Leroy Bach, Mikael Jorgensen Organ [Hammond] – Jim O'Rourke, Leroy Bach Percussion – Glenn Kotche Piano – Jim O'Rourke, John Stirratt, Leroy Bach, Mikael Jorgensen Synthesizer – Glenn Kotche, Jeff Tweedy, Jim O'Rourke, John Stirratt, Leroy Bach, Mikael Jorgensen Vibraphone – Leroy Bach Vocals – Jeff Tweedy

While Wilco's follow up to the plaudit-winning Yankee Hotel Foxtrot is, on all levels, a worthy successor, it may leave many of the band's newer fans a little non-plussed. For, while YHF was a case study in electronic intricacy, A Ghost Is Born has far more to do with the broader picture. As with its predecessor, the album comes with a tale or two of woe and disruption (more line-up changes and Jeff Tweedy's spell in rehab), but overall this is far more downhome stuff - witty and lighter on its feet.

While certain tracks on YHF only revealed their glories in the quiet moments where small sounds shifted and unravelled in front of your ears, Ghost attempts to give you a more focussed audio verite. This could explain why, on the two tracks that extend beyond the five minute mark, they really stretch out, for nigh on quarter of an hour each. It's as though Tweedy and pals have shifted their faith from craftsmanship to the power of repetition. "Spiders" can't help but remind you of the motorik experimentation of Neu! crossed with the freeform guitar of Tom Verlaine.

Wilco – A Ghost Is Born (2004)

Wpisany przez bluesever

Poniedziałek, 12 Październik 2009 22:22 - Zmieniony Czwartek, 04 Kwiecień 2019 19:15

In fact it's guitars that are the album's touchstone. Tweedy, describing his style herein as: 'inspired amateurism' is being typically modest. His Neil Young-like tone and frenzied fretboard manglings make the perfect subversive backdrop to the traditional song formats the band work within. One can only guess at how good this will sound when combined with new member Nels Cline's even further-out extemporisations.

The band never forget their Americana roots, however. A song like "Muzzle Of Bees" can still remind one of wide open spaces (but still undercut with brooding electric menace) and, when it comes to tracks like "Hummingbird" and "Company In My Back", there's no denying that Tweedy still has an almost Beatlesque eye for a tune.

Overall this isn't really a step on from YHF; more of a step back and to the side as the band (and producer Jim O'Rourke) try to capture their live sound in a studio setting. Yet lest this be seen as being a bad thing, remind yourself of how good they were back in the days of Being There. Tweedy and co. are just doing what comes naturally, in a natural way again. Long may they continue... ---Chris Jones, BBC Review download (mp3 @320 kbs):

yandex mediafire ulozto gett bayfiles

back